Hazardous Weather

Hazardous Weather

Critical fire weather conditions will be possible for the majority of the Panhandles during the afternoon hours today. Low relative humidity values and breezy south to southwest winds will contribute to the critical fire weather conditions. Please use caution with any outdoor activities which could produce sparks or flames.

Critical fire weather conditions are expected this afternoon across the entire region. A Red Flag Warning is in effect from noon through 8 PM.

Red Flag Warning In Effect Today

Critical Fire Weather Conditions Expected To Develop This Afternoon

Weather Forecast Office
Fort Worth, TX
Issued Mar 13, 2022 6:35 AM CDT

A RED FLAG WARNING is in effect for the shaded areas from Noon through 9 PM today.

Conditions:

- South winds 15-25 mph with gusts up to 35 mph
- Temperatures warming into the upper 60s and lower 70s
- Relative humidity as low as 10 to 15%
- Dry Vegetation

Outdoor Burning is not recommended

Extreme care is urged during all outside activities where there is a potential for grass fires to start.

NWSFort Worth

weather.gov/fortworth

A Red Flag Warning is in effect for western North Texas from noon through 9 PM today. Warm temperatures and very low humidity values will combine with gusty south winds around 15 to 25 mph with gusts up to 35 mph and very dry grasses and small vegetation for an increasing threat of rapidly spreading wildfires. Outdoor burning is not recommended in these conditions.

Today

Elevated to Critical Fire Weather Afternoon Through Early Evening!

Weather Forecast Office
Fort Worth, TX
Issued Mar 13, 2022 3:45 AM CDT

BREEZY

Breezy, very dry, and warmer conditions later today

Low humidity in the teens West and 20s East creating critical to elevated fire weather conditions

Highs in the 60s, with a few readings in the lower 70s possible Big Country areas

South winds 15-20 mph with a few gusts to 30 mph

NWSFort Worth

weather.gov/fortworth

Fire weather concerns will increase this afternoon through mid evening across the entire area. Critical fire weather conditions are expected across western North Texas, with elevated fire weather conditions elsewhere due to sunny, breezy, and warmer conditions and dry grasses and small vegetation across the area. Very low afternoon humidity values are anticipated with readings in the teens in the West to the 20s in the east. High temperatures will be mostly in the 60s, though a few readings in the lower 70s can't be ruled out across the Big Country areas of the far West.

Hazardous Weather

Critical Fire Weather Conditions Today

Red Flag Warning in Effect for Pink Shaded Area from Noon Until 7 PM

Weather Forecast Office
San Angelo, TX
Issued Mar 13, 2022 5:24 AM CDT

Gusty south winds and very dry air will be favorable for the development and rapid spread of wildfires!

Fire Prevention

Avoid activities that cause sparks or flames!!

Properly dispose of cigarettes!

Keep vehicles off of grass!

Check trailer chains!

Obey City/County/State Burn Bans!

NWSSan Angelo

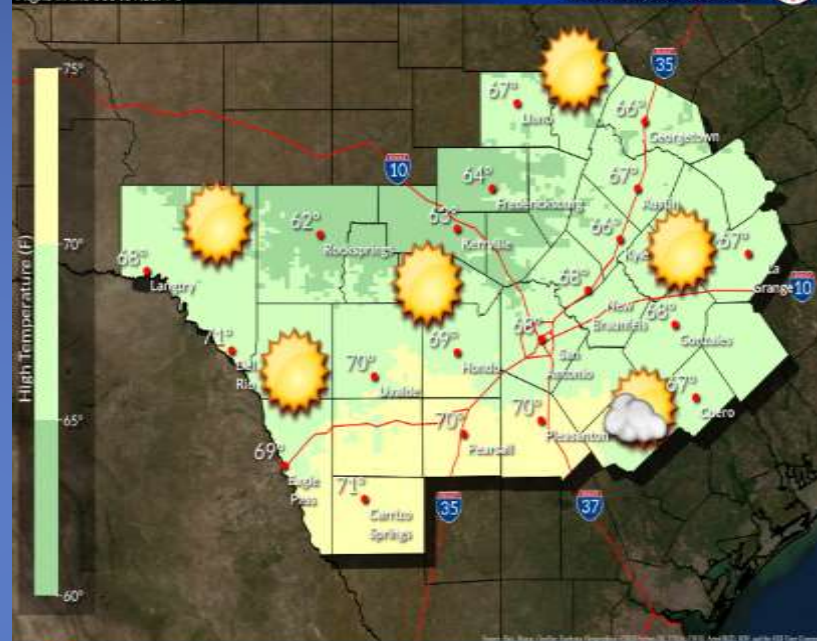

weather.gov/sjt

A Red Flag Warning is in effect from Noon to 7 PM today, for the Big Country area along and north of Interstate 20. Critical fire weather conditions are expected with a combination of stronger winds and very dry air.

Warmer but Mild

Highs in the 60s to near 70

Weather Forecast Office
Austin/San Antonio, TX
Issued Mar 13, 2022 4:52 AM CDT

NWSSan Antonio

weather.gov/ewx

After a cold morning with freezing temperatures for much of the area, light to moderate winds and sunny skies will allow temperatures to rebound in the 60s to near 70. Elevated to near critical fire weather conditions are expected near the Rio Grande Plains and Edwards Plateau.

Hazardous Weather

Elevated winds and very dry conditions will allow for critical fire weather to encompass our northern areas this afternoon into the early evening. Be sure to refrain from burning in the mentioned areas as large fire risk is very high today.
